Forget Millions

Readers' Forum:

Washington bookkeepers (according to the Congressional Record of Jan. 8, 1964) are suffering again with loss of memory. While all the arm twisting was going on because the Representatives wanted to cut the Foreign Aid bill a wee bit—nothing was said about the amount of money on hand which the CIA officials had forgotten to report. The amount is only a trifle of $669 million, which they had lost track of entirely. But, they found out they had it, after the Foreign Aid bill passed. Watch it fellows, next time around. Are we so naive and disenchanted that we don't give a hoot—just pass up such disclosures with a shrug of the shoulders?

Life is too short for loving, and Eternity too long for hating, but there must be an area somewhere in between that we could at least respect each other, and unite in an effort to hold on to America so our ancestors can still be proud and our great children say—we tried.
